'Invest in Beauty' - -

Campaign is launched to make the Village area more attractive

SMALL BOYS TOSS HORSESHOES on a vacant lot on Delfino Place, one of several open and usually litter-strewn areas in the Village. The shrubbery in foreground was planted by business people as a first step in making the street more attractive. Although the Village Committee cannot plant on private property, it does hope to add many more trees, shrubs and flowers to strips of county-owned land. And several merchants are hopeful that owners of vacant lots will agree to allow public-spirited citizens to cut weeds, clean up trash and possibly plant grass for "mini-parks".

Imagine trees lining the streets of Carmel Valley Village. Grass and flowers covering areas now marred by weeds and trash. And maybe, one day, sidewalks.

The Village Committee of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, which is long on imagination and short on money, has decided to find out just how many Valley residents share its dream of a more attractive Village. Starting this week, it is asking residents to "Invest in Beauty" by purchasing tickets for $1 each at businesses in the Village.

Ticket holders will be eligible to win one of several paintings and works of art valued at over $1000 which were donated by the Village Committee by prominent Carmel Valley artists. All art is on display now at the Bank of America in the Village.

The "Invest in Beauty" fund-raising drive will last until Halloween, when prize-winners will be announced at 3 p.m. at the Village Art Gallery on Delfino Place.

Bob Kvenild, chairman of the Village Committee, said that money is needed not only to purchase trees and plants, but to pay for their continued care. He said one can expect to pay about $25 for a large tree, which will then need $25 a year for three years to pay for its upkeep until it is well established.

Artists who have donated to the Village beautification program are: Joyce Jenkins, framed painting worth $165; Virginia Ford, two paintings worth $150; Doyt Early, unframed painting valued at $75; Kathryn Russell, copper enamel valued at $40; Rudi Marzi, two pottery bowls worth $12 each; Jim Ziegler, framed photograph valued at $25; Ann Berthoin, copper enamel worth $35; and Barbara Johnson, three paintings with a combined value of $494.

Valley residents against

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Dear Sir:

As chairman for the Carmel Valley Lionettes Committee for landscaping the pool entry at the Community Youth Center, I would like to publicly thank several members of the Carmel Valley Lions Club for coming to the rescue and helping to get the project underway.

On Saturday, Sept. 12th, the whole undertaking looked hopeless as the area to be planted had not been prepared as promised by the Community Center Committee, but through the efforts of many individuals work was underway early Sunday morning. The landscaping is not yet completed, but headway has been made and we hope to finish it in the near future.

My thanks to Charlie Gansel for coordinating the effort, to Tom Bordonaro who donated 30 yards of soil and use his equipment to load it, to Dick McKenzie who hauled the soil in his truck, to Herman Tedrow who transported the plantings, and to Phil Wright, Cliff Bolgard, Lloyd Todd, Gary Kitt and Bill Stowers for their work in preparing the planting area. Thanks, also, to Alice and Salih Mehdy for their help in securing the stock and their helpful advice.

Sincerely,
RUTH W. STOWERS

Dear Sir

I am glad that you found room in your Carmel Valley Outlook for the little matter concerning Master Ted Galante and the President of the California American Water Company.

I am presuming on your permission to pass it on to the Monterey Peninsula Herald as I thought it quite amusing. It reminds me of a well known quotation from Shakespeare.

Yours truly

To the Editor:

Why doesn't Mr. Branson tell it like it really is? I sat in at a CVPOA meeting less than a month ago when Mr. Branson asked the board to recommend a member to the county wide committee to draft a hillside conservation ordinance. He said at that time he would not appoint Mr. Skip Marquard as a member to the committee as he knew that Mr. Marquard was unacceptable to CVPOA and that he would appoint Mr. Morden Buck. Now, however, we find that Mr. Marquard is a committee member along with Mr. Buck.

How Mr. Branson expects we can get a fair shake on hillside development which meets our needs with Mr. Marquard on the committee I don't know. Mr. Marquard has boasted publicly that he organized the defeat of the HC ordinance the last time it was brought up before the County Supervisors.

I do know that once a man goes back on his word does not necessarily mean that you can no longer believe anything that he says, but it does make you question what he says in the future.

cc-Mr. Branson

Dear Sir:

The Save the Cachagua Committee would like to express its deep appreciation to literally thousands of citizens who have supported our fund raising project+ and petitions.

The difficult days of waiting continue as California-American Water Company has not yet made public its decision on site selection.

In a recent interview, Mr. Wilford B. Hays, President of California-American, stated that the water company would be making some sort of announcement on or before October 31st "to the press and interested people". At the same time he noted however that the water company does not plan to submit its decision to the County Board of Supervisors for review and approval. He stated that although the water company was "trying to cooperate with everyone", he added that "we are not going to be governed by the Board of Supervisors. We have been in contact with the Board all the way along, but not on a formal basis. They will be in the picture because they are the governing body of the County, but that's about it."

The Cachagua Committee recognizes that the water supply of the entire Peninsula is vital to our future. We also know that the decision before the water company is a serious and complex matter. It is hoped that the media will find time and space to devote to the many factors involved in this issue. It deserves careful review at this time, as the Carmel River is the primary source of water for Cal-Am's growing number of consumers.

Perhaps, through intelligent appraisal of the situation, the public, if given a forum, may be found a valuable aid to the solutions of problems facing the water company. In any event, what the water company does affects each of its present 122,300 customers, as rates are a measure of management's skill in decision making.

Sincerely,

THE SAVE THE CACHAGUA COMMITTEE

+ The painting by Jack Swanson was awarded in the drawing September 15th, to Mrs. John Rushmer of Boronda Road, Carmel Valley.

From the crest of scenic Carmel Valley hillsides to the sheltered banks of the Carmel River, trailers are suddenly coming under close and generally unloving scrutiny.

The thought of hump-backed houses on wheels spurting like metallic mushrooms along the roadside has prompted the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and the Upper and Lower Valley Advisory Committees to endorse an ordinance drafted by Supervisor Willard T. Branson to ban trailers and mobile homes on land zoned agriculture-residential in Carmel Valley.

The ordinance would not affect any trailers now being used for living quarters, so the clusters of retirement trailer homes in Cachagua and other trailers scattered through the Valley would not be in jeopardy. Nor presumably, would the $100,000 dressing room trailer outfitted for Elizabeth Taylor that is allegedly stashed away in the Valley.

At a Planning Commission meeting two weeks ago, the proposed ordinance to establish a "J" zone through the Valley (no more trailers or mobile homes to be used as permanent living quarters) ran into stiff opposition from some property owners who argued it would unduly restrict individual property rights. Commissioners delayed action for 60 days on the grounds that they needed to hear from more Carmel Valley residents on the matter.

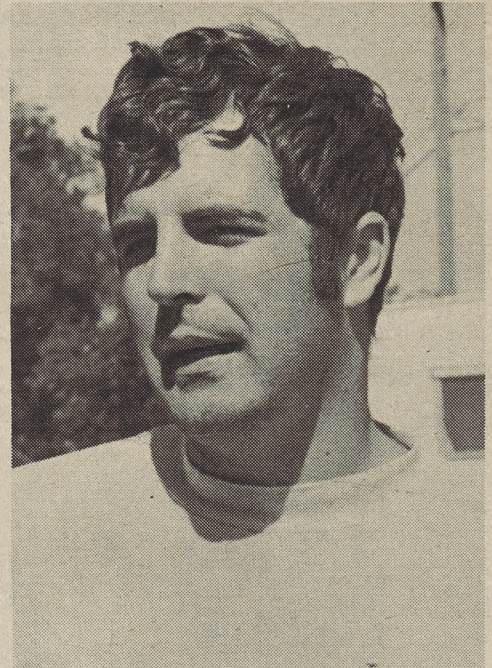

Last week the Outlook conducted an informal poll, which turned out to be overwhelmingly in favor of banning more trailers. We also found out that not one person questioned knew what a "J" zone meant, although almost all had read stories about the proposed ordinance and had very definite opinions about trailers.

Three persons commented they had read the signs on telephone poles and, after stumbling through the legal jargon and jumble of code numbers and letters, wound up knowing less than they had when they started.

These were the responses to the question: Are you in favor of an ordinance that would ban trailers or mobile homes as living quarters in Carmel Valley?

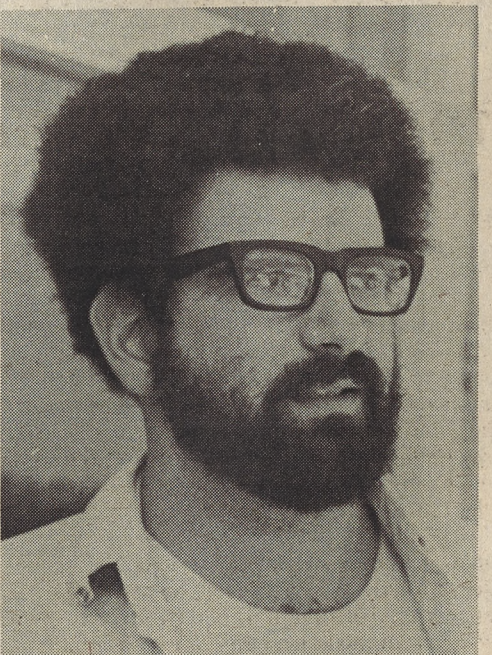

"Yes, I'd favor the ordinance. I don't think trailers are attractive to look at. I'd just as soon keep them out." DICK CRANE, Punte del Monte.

"I've thought about that. We have a trailer behind our house. Dad likes to take it around and take overnight trips. That ordinance could affect that, so I'd have to be against it. Trailers aren't something that's really attractive, but it is sort of an infringement on people's rights to ban them. It seems a little unfair to me, although I understand why people don't like trailers. ROBERT McCULLEY, Ford Road.

"I think a lot of people have homes and trailers for camping. But I think we should keep the Valley a rustic area, or else it will be like Yosemite. I think it should be all right for a person living here to have a trailer to use for camping, but not for permanent living quarters." JOAN LEVY, Story Road.

"That's hard to say. I've been here just eight days. We came from New York City and bought a house on Poppy Road. I'll have to live here awhile before I get involved in something like that." SHELLY SCHACHTER, Poppy Road.

trailer homes

"Yes, I'm in favor of the ordinance. I'd hate to see a trailer house next to an $80,000 house. It hurts property values. I wouldn't mind if there is enough property and they're remote, but if someone were going to put a trailer on Laurel Drive, I wouldn't like it." MRS. SUE PETKUS, E. Carmel Valley Road.

"I'd be terribly against trailers, because I think they're unsightly. I think it invites the wrong sort of people into the Valley, and can run into trailer parks and all that." ADRIANN RICUPERO, Laurel Drive.

"I'm against having trailer parks out in the open. I think all housing should be back in the trees where it isn't seen. Then it doesn't make any difference what it is. I object to all the houses springing up around my house right now." ROBERT MERCHANT, Ford Road.

"I'm for the ordinance. I think it would deteriorate the character of the Valley to have trailers." GRAHAM MATTHEWS, Via Milpitas.

Branson seeks interim law banning trailer homes in Valley

Supervisor Willard T. Branson yesterday asked the County Board of Supervisors to adopt an interim ordinance prohibiting the use of mobile homes or trailers as living units in Carmel Valley.

The ordinance, which would remain in effect for 90 days, would ban the use of "any land for the purpose of maintaining a mobile home or trailer as a living unit unless and until a special permit therefor shall have been first secured."

Applications for special permits would have to be made to the Monterey County Planning Commission, which would be empowered to impose any special conditions it feels necessary before issuing any permits for mobile homes or trailers.

The ordinance would not be retroactive, and would not affect trailers already used as mobile homes in the Valley.

The ordinance states that it is an emergency measure "necessary for the immediate preservation and enjoyment of public health, safety and welfare," because the supervisors have learned "that there are persons already intending to use land in a manner which will be in violation of the contemplated zoning if not regulated immediately."

The following statement was issued by Branson before yesterday's meeting:

STATEMENT BY BRANSON

"As you can see by the attached interim ordinance the primary purpose for requesting this ordinance is that zoning studies are now in process (HC amendment etc.) which will lead to precise and detailed regulations for land use in Carmel Valley. It has come to my attention that several people are contemplating moving trailers and-or mobile homes into Carmel Valley, and while this ordinance is not directly related to stopping those particular people it is intended to declare a pause in which to evaluate the use of trailers and-or mobile homes in Carmel Valley.

"In studying the Carmel Valley Master Plan and in speaking with a large cross section of the people from Carmel Valley, I am convinced that this matter is of sufficient urgency to avoid the sixty day delay which was mandated by the Planning Commission at its hearing.

"There is no conflict between our local planning commission members and the people of Carmel Valley and me on this matter. Our local commissioners strongly supported immediate adoption but it appeared (as I see it) that there would be a stalemate in the vote, so it was continued. Therefore this action appears to me to be mandatory."

A THANK YOU NOTE

From Al and Connie Hood

A sincere thank you for the response of the many concerned people who have sent their donations to the Carmel Valley Airport Beautification and Preservation Fund and have encouraged us to "keep up the good fight!"

We've had the pleasure of meeting more families. And we've especially enjoyed flying them over the Valley.

Don't forget! For a donation of any amount you will receive a Carmel Valley Airport decal. A donation of ten dollars or more will entitle you to a flight for you and a guest over beautiful Carmel Valley in one of our fine Cessnas.

If you want to help, please send your donation to the Carmel Valley Airport Beautification Fund, P.O. Box 467, Carmel Valley, CA. 93924.

Thanks for your support,
AL AND CONNIE HOOD

A CHARMING ADDITION to the El Baile de los Amigos was Lee Murphy's mother, Mrs. Francis Murphy of Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Mrs. Murphy, a petite 4'9" wore a 150-year-old costume to the ball. During her three week stay with Ginnie and Lee at their Salsiapedes home, the Murphys have enjoyed touring the Peninsula and have noted that on this, her fourth visit to California it has not been necessary to duplicate restaurants with the large and varied selection from which to choose. Another houseguest for the ball was Ginnie's niece, a former Valley-ite, Daphne Meyers. Daphne put in a breathless 7:00 p.m. arrival in the Valley from ... Berkeley where she had been putting the finishing touches on her Spanish gown.

FIDELITY

A sure sign of fall ... October 1, vacations are over, and the first meeting of the Fidelity Club will begin at 6:00 p.m. with a potluck dinner in Fellowship Hall. The meeting is open to Valley-ites over 50 who are invited to bring a salad, dessert or covered dish and join the fun. Program chairman Sterling Mummert has invited "part time Valley-ite" Leon Amyx to be the season's first guest speaker. A professor of art at Hartnell College, Professor Amyx will lead the annual Art discussion for the Club.

"HEY COUSIN, we need ALL the help we can get!" seems to be what Co-chairman Mal Tavares and Lions Club president Charlie Gansel are assuring Jack Black's mule while discussing Sunday's Donkey Baseball game.

THE CLIFFORD BOLGARDS included a deep sea fishing trip, picnics, a visit to Big Sur, and the Pinacles on the agenda of the entertainment planned for their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Bolgard who arrived from Rye, New York to vacation in the Valley. While Bob and Mollie spent five days in San Francisco, the Valley grandparents enjoyed a five-day visit with Branreth who is 3, and 6-year-old Spencer. Mollie celebrated her birthday while she was here at a bridge and dessert planned by Irma at her La Rancheria home. Mrs. Joseph Blacow baked a beautiful birthday cake which was enjoyed by the other guests, Mrs. Elbert Wade and Mrs. Ruth Jones. A salmon barbecue was the highlight of a family reunion when the Bolgards' other son, Roger, and his wife, Barbara and their daughters, Amy and Nancy arrived from their home in Mountain View.

REGAN AND GARTH FRAZER were jointly honored with a "Farm Party" recently by their parents, Shirley and Jim Ijams. Celebrating Regan's 10th and Garth's 9th birthdays, the party revolved around the family goats, rabbits, chickens, cats and dogs. THREE decorated cakes and homemade ice cream topped the luncheon menu of roast wieners and bean-pot beans. The invitations asked their young friends to come as "Country Folk" with a prize for Kurt Buche as a cowboy and Debbie Jameson as the Egg Lady (complete with a pail fresh from her own hens). Other guests came as hired hands, cowgirls, a scare crow, pumpkins and carrots, the farmer's mother (in her red nightshirt) and the farmer's wife. Enjoying life "down on the farm" were Laura Valpey, Eric Collas, Becky Lambert, Laura Busic, Danny Jardine, Marlane Collas, Tami Stainbrook, Marit Arana, Steven Platter, Kevin Washington, Jo Beth Vanetta, Lory Hindman, Brent Buche, Isobel Collas, Wendy Lambert, Brock Buche, Marc Arana, Gladys Zarazua, Rick Hindman, John Lindsey, Frank Collas, Cynthia Platter, Pam Oross, and Ivans Collas. Also attending were the honoree's sister, Robyn Frazer, their step brothers, Kirke and Timmy Erskine, and their cousins, Jennifer and Heather Ijams of San Jose.

CONTRARY TO ANYTHING you have heard in the PAST, the LIONS will meet the LIONS in the FUTURE Sunday, September 27, to be exact in a Donkey Baseball game to be played on the Carmel Valley Little League Field. Carmel's Mission 200 Lions Club was reportedly offended by a nameless reporter's article dealing with the bravery of their members who had earlier ignored the Valley Club's challenge. On the other hand the Community Center Charger's FALSE bravado was short lived and the Phantom Oak Moth has received a tip that Sunday will find them in the nether regions of the Cachagua engaged in a Tiddly Wink Tourney with Brownies and Bluebirds!

The game gets underway at 3:00 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at the gate (donations are $1.00 for adults or 50c per child) or watch for youngsters up to 16 years of age who are invited to sell Donkey Baseball tickets in order to ride in the Donkey races after the game. Tickets are available at Jack's Clip Joint and the top 20 ticket sellers will be eligible to compete for the prizes to be awarded the winners of the first, second and third place winners from the two races.

The Carmel Valley Lionettes will have a generous selection of snacks available at the Snack Booth with all proceeds earmarked for the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department with which to purchase an air compressor and tanks. It promises to be great Sunday entertainment ... do plan to be there.

THE JUNIOR HIGH YOUTH FELLOWSHIP of Carmel Valley Community Chapel is in the full swing of fall with a calendar packed with exciting activities. The officers met at the end of August at the Upper Circle home of their advisers, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rhoades. "Do-it-yourself-ice-cream-sundaes" provided the executive group with an incentive to map out a fun filled year. A tour of the Peter Paul Candy Factory in Salinas was their first field trip with an informative tour given by their guide, Miss Kirby. The young people had new appreciation for the candy bars which were presented to them after viewing a film on the cocoa bean in its natural country. Their day was capped with a taco feed on the way home. Their first "formal" meeting was a "Hobo Supper" with members in their oldest clothes and dinner served on throw away dishes. A pool party was their next event held at the Encino Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fields hosted by their son, Jeff. Last Saturday a party of 18 drove to the Oakland Coliseum to watch an Oakland A's ballgame.

Boys and girls of Junior High age are cordially invited to attend the meetings held at the church the first Friday of the month. Dues are 25 cents per month. The second Saturday of the month will be regularly scheduled for outings. Contact Mr. or Mrs. Rhoades, 659-2071, for further information.

"ONE OF THESE DAYS we're coming back to Carmel Valley for a long stay. It's still the best place we've seen in the world," wrote the Stan Clouds in a recent letter from Bangkok where Stan is based by TIME magazine to cover Thailand, Saigon, Laos and Cambodia. The Valley family have traveled extensively since his days as a reporter on the Monterey Herald followed by his editing of "The Advocate", a monthly journal of opinion on the Peninsula which won journalistic acclaim in California and areas outside the state. Prior to Thailand he was TIME's Moscow correspondent for ten months until true to his reputation for "telling it like it is" he fell into disfavor with the Soviet government and was banned from the country. Before leaving on their latest overseas junket they paid a whirlwind visit to the Valley where their home in Hitchcock Canyon is leased. Nancy, who was active in the Valley Cooperative Nursery School and substituted at Tularcitos, is contemplating teaching in an English school in Bangkok where the Cloud sons, Michael and David are enrolled.

"AN OLD OAK LEAF CLUSTER" to the Carmel Valley Lionettes who with their hard-working husbands are turning what was an eyesore into a spot of beauty. Their latest contribution to the valley is to landscape the entry to the swimming pool utilizing funds earned by the ladies in last year's Talent project spearheaded by Mrs. William Stowers. Wishing to comply with the Community Center Board, their master plan, and the landscape architect who was donating his time, the Lionettes postponed their ground breaking for a year. Last week, arriving with FORTY NINE plants, it was discovered that the necessary fill, forms and watering had not been taken care of as had been promised. Many Lions cancelled their Sunday plans and moved in with tractors, bulldozers, trucks and equipment. Thirty yards of fill had to be hauled and leveled before a single plant could go into the ground. It took backbreaking work with post hole diggers, pick axes, and crow bars to sink the plantings, each encased in a strong gopher basket, into the Valley's sunbaked soil. Ruth Stowers and her workers now have one side of the pool completed containing Flowering plum, piracantha-Santa Cruz, Blue Sitzer Juniper and Cryptomalia. The other side of the pool had not been readied for another day of donated labor. Hopefully this will be done so that their gift to the community can be completed before the winter rains. A community fortunate enough to have TWO organizations whose membership consists of individuals with families and full time jobs who are willing to work that hard toward civic improvement is rich beyond belief.

Community Hospital Auxiliary readies for Thrift Shop Sale

Preparations are well underway for a month long Thrift Shop Sale by the Auxiliary of the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. The Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services will open their Thrift Shop at 7835 Broadway, Seaside, for the sale from noon to 4 p.m. each week day October 5 through 30. Merchandise of every description will be available, from rugs to chandeliers for the house, from shoes to wigs for the ladies and from nuts and bolts to automobile tires for the men - and wonderful toys for the kids.

Mrs. George Mack is the Auxiliary Thrift Shop Sale chairman, Mrs. Robinson is pick-up chairman and Mrs. Broome is receiving chairman. MPVS Thrift Shop chairman is Mrs. George Macy; Mrs. O.C. Peters and Mrs. Frank Minerva are in charge of pricing.

Donations of merchandise for the sale are eagerly sought and arrangements for their pick-up may be made by calling Mrs. Robinson at 659-2538 or the Auxiliary Desk at the Hospital, 624-5311. Donations are, of course, tax deductible.

The Volkswagen Bus was a gift to the hospital by Wester Motors a year ago and was made available to the Auxiliary during this preparation period. The Naval Air Landing Facility has opened and cleared a quonset hut for sorting and storage purposes.

We're not alone, a dot in boundless skies,
For I have heard a voice of sure intent
To guide my hand and thought, which satisfies
My yearning for a true acknowledgment;

A voice caressing me: keep on, straight on
It says, and fills me with keen gratitude
I'm something more than mere automaton,
An entity, yet constantly renewed.

In this I shall continue, knowing sure
To reap the harvest seed must first be sown;
And thus, with you beside me love, endure
All things, because through all I'm not alone.

If years and strife have thinned my silvered hair
Vicissitudes have taught me faith and trust,
I treasure most of all to know you care,
Ensuring love beyond the mortal dust.

We may be parted, yet contain your grief,
A brighter day must dawn than we have known;
So join me now in this my firm belief
That never more shall either stand alone.

THE BIG MOMENT came last week to determine who would be the new owner of Jack Swanson's large oil painting of round-up time in Cachagua. While Charlie Pina, left, and Jim Ziegler held the bag, young Cache Swanson reached in and - presto! Nancy Rushmer had a new painting for the living room of her home on Boronda Road. In the process of redecorating, she was elated because "it will fit in just beautifully." The Save the Cachagua Committee was equally delighted with the $2500 the painting raised to fight efforts to inundate Cachagua Valley with a major new dam.

Byington Ford . . .

his fabulous career

Carmel Valley owes much to his foresight

By JUDITH A. EISNER

THE PHONE BOOTH

Iron + Tin + Zinc = Beige. If you have a beige telephone, that's the formula used to make it that color. And these aren't all the elements it contains. Your standard phone has 42 of the 104 known chemical elements, ranging from precious metals like gold, silver and platinum (in tiny amounts for electrical contacts) to more plentiful copper, iron and lead.

The elements are in chemical compounds—such as the hydrogen and carbon that form the plastic housing of your phone. That's the formula for your basic black set. And making telephones other colors is not achieved by painting them. Adding mercury to the compound makes them red. Cadmium makes them yellow, and chromium, green.

United Nations Day is October 24. President Nixon has asked all Americans to observe the U.N.'s 25th anniversary this year as a reminder that the U.N. is the chief rallying point for those who seek world peace and world economic and social stability.

The Question Box

Q Are the "toll free" numbers I've seen advertised really free?

A Yes. Many businesses advertise special numbers which permit their customers on the Monterey Peninsula to call them free of charge. You never have to mention that the call is collect or wait for them to accept charges. These companies welcome your call and automatically pick up the tab.

Pacific Telephone

Don Boston

Don Boston,

Your Telephone Manager in Carmel

Imagine coming to the Monterey Peninsula half a century ago as a young man to live and work and play; imagine the untouched beauties of cypress grove, pine forest and oak-shaded hillsides; imagine the carefree years after the first World War in Carmel—a happy life of baseball games, polo matches, theatrical productions, all-night parties. Imagine being one of the first men to develop this area—and develop it with a conscience and an eye to preservation—and you are recreating some of the memories of Byington Ford.

Born in 1891 in Downieville, Sierra County, California, By's parents moved to San Francisco when he was two years old. "so I don't really remember much before San Francisco," he says. He attended the San Francisco public schools and recalls with some pleasure that he was last in his high school graduating class and considered an academic washout.

He also remembers, with equal pleasure, the Great Quake of 1906, for he was 15 years old. The Ford family lived on Haight Street and By recalls: "I got on my bicycle and rode downtown to watch it. Oh, I had a grand time. I watched them dynamiting the buildings. My folks were getting ready to evacuate and thought I was lost."

By was only "lost" in those days in the academic sense. He enrolled at Santa Clara College, where he "played a little rugby and baseball—there was no football in America then," and managed to graduate at the head of his class—magna cum laude. "I was a late-bloomer," he smiles.

His father was a lawyer and By intended to follow him into law practice. He had been accepted to Harvard, but entered the "University," (U.C. Berkeley) instead, because it was felt he was a little young.

"I got another B.A. in 1912 and an M.A. in 1913, and I really think I went the extra year to get my M.A. so I could play baseball," he admits. In the interim, however, he gave up the idea of practicing law and went into real estate instead.

He did his internship in subdivision and real estate up in San Francisco with Ingleside Terraces, a major subdivision firm of the pre-World War I era.

Somehow, By Ford, whose interests were numerous and varied, found himself out of the real estate business and in the fledgling field of producing animated cartoons—long before Walt Disney ever entered the picture. That prospering endeavor ended, however, with the entry of the U.S. into World War I.

JOINS GUARD

By enlisted in the California National Guard in 1917, went to Officers Training Camp at the Presidio of San Francisco where he was commissioned, and thence "over there" to France. As a member of the 26th "Yankee" Division, Ford saw action in such memorable places as Chateau Thierry and the Meuse Argonne and was discharged, in 1919, as a Captain.

"I had been gassed during the war and when I was discharged from Letterman General Hospital I came down here to get out in the open and breathe some fresh air. I never left."

He took a temporary job—that was to last 12 years—with Del Monte Properties and was suddenly back in the real estate business. His job included riding horseback through the undeveloped parts of Del Monte Forest and he eventually came to head their Real Estate Department.

Those were the carefree years of playing polo in Pebble Beach ("When they needed an eighth, they'd put me on some hard-mouthed old horse,") and of paper-chases through Del Monte Forest. A paper-chase, he explains, is when the "hare" drops torn pieces of paper from horseback to mark his trail and is pursued by the "hunters" as in a real hunt. "We ran those paper-chases from Del Monte Lodge to Cypress Point," he remembers, and also remembers that he has "a polo cup or two" tucked away.

Those were also the good old days of the Abalone League, the famed baseball league of old Carmel, that began back in 1925 and included such players as Lee Gottfried, architect, Fred Godwin, C. K. Van Riper, playwright, Eddie Burns, a pro ex-catcher from the Phillies, Harrison Godwin and Glenn Leidig.

Notable on every team in the League were two women players, one playing first base and the other a nebulous position known as "mid-field."

"It was just a fun thing among neighbors," says By, but it made headlines in those days.

Says a write-up in a local newspaper: "The Shamrocks (By's team) took to the field wearing the most godawful shirts ever seen at the Abalone Park and that is saying a lot.

After the shouting was over and the Shamrocks won, By Ford said complacently, 'I knew those shirts would scare them.'..."

One of the cultural contributions of the Abalone League was the "Abalone Song," an ongoing phenomenon penned by such notables as George Sterling, Jack London and Sinclair Lewis:

Oh some drink rain
and some champagne,
And whiskey by the pony
But I will try a dash of rye
And a hunk of abalone wrote George Sterling.

The Abalone League players sang the Abalone Song while pounding succulent Monterey Bay abalone at gala Carmel beach parties of yesteryear. It is, says By Ford, Carmel's contribution to American folk music.

Back at its inception, the Abalone League played ball on what is now Carmel Point. They eventually bought some land in Carmel Woods and to pay for those lots, turned to theatrical endeavors.

ON STAGE

At the old Arts and Crafts Theater, where the Golden Bough now stands, By Ford and his Abalone Players staged some of Carmel's most memorable theatrical firsts. In 1927 they produced "The Bad Man," in 1928 "The Copperhead," in which leading man By Ford was compared to Lionel Barrymore, the "Abalone Follies" to raise money to re-roof Carmel Mission, and "Is Zat So."

What began as baseball-oriented whimsy turned into genuine theatrical involvement and in 1934 By directed Martin Flavin's "Sunday" at the Forest Theater and later John Patrick's "Glory Lane." Both playwrights went on to become Pulitzer Prize winners. He then co-authored a musical, "Where There's A Will" with Dick Masten, long known in Carmel theatrical circles. In all, he acted in, directed or wrote more than 45 plays in Carmel.

Those heydays of Carmel theatre, By recalls, were days when Carmel was a small town, when everyone knew everyone else and when a director would stop a girl on the street and say, "Hey, you look right for this part. How about coming down and reading it for me?" That was type casting! That, as a matter of fact, was how By got into his first Carmel show, "Prunella." "Kit Cook, the director, stopped me on the street and that did it," he remembers.

"Where There's A Will" was produced in 1939, which was the year By began development of the Mission Tract. He was on his own now, operating Carmel Realty Company and the days when Ocean Avenue was unpaved were long gone.

"I was the first person to put in underground utilities in Carmel," he says, "and I had to fight just about everybody to get it done. I learned about underground back in 1913 with Ingleside Terraces in San Francisco."

He also developed Carmel Woods, "the first time the City of Carmel entered into a commercial enterprise," he chuckles.

"We promised to pave the streets in the Woods for the city. And we got Jo Mora, the sculptor, to execute the statue of Father Serra that still stands there, and George Sterling to write a poem dedicating the Woods to the memory of Serra. Then we had a real ceremony, unveiling the statue and reading the poem and everybody was delighted."

By Ford isn't at all surprised at the growth of the area. "I knew back then that every year more and more people were going to find this place and come here to live...and we'd have to take care of traffic and parking and all that. Way back in the 'Dark Ages' I had a big fight in Carmel about parking. At that time, they parked on the diagonal, on both sides of Ocean Avenue—four rows of parked cars. I surveyed the number of parking spaces on the streets and said there wasn't enough—but they didn't listen to me. 'We don't want anyone else to come to Carmel' they said.

"I fought for four lanes of traffic in the Valley—but not a four-lane highway. I wanted something like the Prunedale cutoff—two winding country roads, but one-way roads. I wanted the existing Carmel Valley Road to be one way and another road to be built farther south, following the river...It can still be done, but now they'd have to condemn a lot more property."

By's association with Carmel Valley goes back to the 40s when his brother, Tirey, founded Del Monte Aviation. By learned to fly and got his first pilot's license in 1941. He and Tirey envisioned the coming of the airplane, an era when every man was able to own his own plane, and purchased from Frank Porter 600 acres of Carmel Valley real estate.

BUILT AIRPORT

"We were a little ahead of our time but didn't know it," he says. "I used to get up every morning and put up a wind sock. I checked it every day for a month; then, I laid out the runway."

They planted the landing strip with African Kykuyu grass, and By, who should know, says they planted 2400 feet as the original length. "Then, when after a time the grass got blotchy, my brother oiled 1800 feet of runway. That's where the controversy started. But it was planned as a 2400-foot runway."

They called in an architect who drew up the original plans for Airway Ranch, the subdivision-that-never-was, for along came World War II.

"I enlisted again," says By, who eventually ended up as Provost Marshall at Wright Field and a Lt. Colonel.

In the meantime, the "airport" in Carmel Valley was being used by the army to train pilots and during the war the one and only hangar-house, designed for plane-owning families, was burned.

After the war, still harboring visions of Airway Ranch, By built what is now part of Carmel Valley Village—originally "Airway Village," containing the Airway Market (now the General Store), a barber shop he named the "Clip Joint," and the Grapevine Liquor Store. These buildings, without arcade, were conceived as a Spanish town and artist Bruce Ariss painted murals on each store. "Tourists would drive by, see those colored murals, slam on their brakes and back up!" he says. All that is changed now. By owned the Grapevine with Ed Haber for a long time, and built and owned Canary Cottages as well.

By admits that the valley is getting crowded and blames zoning regulations and personal greed for it.

"When I laid out tracts we didn't have any zoning regulations. I'd go over the land and where there was a building site, I'd sink a stake. It was all natural contour subdivision and the deed restrictions were against future subdivision.

"We didn't go by lot size; some homesites were a half acre and some were eight acres or more. We selected sites, not one acre or three acre parcels.

"One acre zoning is not the answer. I believe in cluster developments now. People can't keep up an acre or two in green lawn and gardens the way cluster developments can. They preserve large stretches of greenbelt. I remember when the property owners fought against the golf courses. Now they admit they preserve the greenery.

"I suggested once long ago that in Carmel Valley Village they have 'Green Zones.' They were to be 10-acre minimum building sites with a minimum of buildings and a limited number of families—ideal for a small research laboratory, any clean-air business. That would have kept chunks of 10 and 20 acres intact. Instead, it's being cut up into one acre lots.

"I sold 22 acres behind the airport with a no-subdivision clause. Now there are at least five houses bulldozed out of those hillsides because of the new zoning regulations which superseded my deed restrictions.

BYINGTON FORD in 1928, when he starred in 'The Copperhead' at the Carmel Playhouse.

"I wish," he muses, "that more developers worked the way Del Monte Properties worked, or the way I did..."

By Ford will be 80 years old on November 1. He plays nine holes of golf every morning at the Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club, where he now lives with his wife, Ruth. He has three daughters living on the Peninsula, 11 grandchildren and a great-grandchild "on the way." He admits he likes to reminisce, even as he likes to look forward.

"My experiences have been very pleasant here...The people I fought with are my friends."

NOW YOU SEE THEM, NOW YOU DON'T when it comes to ancient oaks that have long sheltered travellers in upper Carmel Valley. Mrs. Gerald Petkus rides past the entrance to the Petkus' property which is about to undergo a surgical transformation at the hands of the County Road Department. The trees and slope behind her will be eliminated in the coming months as work proceeds to repair and straighten the road east of the Village. And meanwhile, back in the Village, people are trying to collect a few dollars to plant more trees so there will be shade and beauty and a rural atmosphere something more like ... uh ... this.

Carmel school employees briefed by John Frykman ...

Drugs ... what they are, what they do

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Scores of Carmel school employees were given a capsule course on drugs last week -- what they are, what they do, and what to do for someone who is suffering from their ill affects.

The instructor was John Frykman, the district's community counselor who is the former director of the Drug Treatment Program of the Haight-Ashbury Medical Clinic.

Frykman's talk, presented for parents and other interested adults last night in Brey Hall at Carmel High School, included much information incorporated into his forthcoming book, A New Connection, which will be released next month by Macmillan and Company.

Because of the vital factual nature of this material, this article quotes extensively without attribution from a pamphlet excerpting Frykman's book, as well as from one of last week's two-hour lectures.

Frykman gave the following breakdown of drug groupings, listed in the order of their most frequent abuse. The first group, sedative-synotics or "downers", are the most widely abused group of drugs.

SEDATIVE-HYPNOTICS (DOWNERS)

This family of drugs represents a wide variety of preparations which include the barbiturates (reds, yellows, rainbows, etc.); so-called minor tranquilizers, such as meprobamate (Miltown, Equanil, etc.); alcohol; freon gas (the pressurizing agent in spray cans); nitrous oxide (laughing gas); ether; a group of widely prescribed anxiety relievers (Serax, Librium, Valium); the bromides (found in over-the-counter sleeping medications such as Sominex and Nytol); and PCP (Sernyl). Marijuana could also rightly be placed in this family, but because it has some unique characteristics, it will be described separately.

The main effects of the sedative-hypnotics are to relieve anxiety. A person using them may pass through several phases. First he is pleasantly "high", then drunk or intoxicated so that co-ordination and speech are affected. As dosage increases, the drug induces sleep, and at higher dosage levels produces general anesthesia. If an overdose has been taken, the person may pass into a comatose condition and may die from heart or respiratory arrest.

"The great danger, and what is fairly common," Frykman said, "is that a person will use alcohol and barbs together. They have an additive effect in the system, and the person moves from sleep into a coma, and eventually dies from choking on his own fluids.

"The easiest way to tell if a person is asleep or in a coma is to run your finger over his eyelashes. If he is in a coma, there will be no reaction at all.

"To help someone in a coma, first see that he can breathe. Get him up and slap him ... whack him ... abuse him. Put him in a cold shower. If you have ice, put it on the genital area. Get his whole body to react.

"As soon as he is conscious, try to get him to vomit. The danger period is about 12 hours."

Physical dependence (where it takes gradually increasing doses of the drug to produce the same effect) and psychological dependence (where it becomes impossible for the person to function normally in his relationship with others or to maintain his life style without the drug) are serious dangers with the sedative-hypnotics. Many deaths occur due to overdose; barbiturate poisoning accounts for more deaths in this country than any other type of poisoning.

Barbiturate detoxification or withdrawal has many complications and must usually be accomplished in a hospital, because of the high risk of convulsions and other complications. Detoxification may take from eight to 12 days, depending on the severity of the dependence.

OPIATES - NARCOTICS (STUFF, JUNK)

This family includes the natural and semi-synthetic derivatives of opium (codeine, morphine, heroin), as well as a variety of synthetic products (Demerol, Percodan, Methadone, Diluadid, and others).

The narcotics relieve pain and anxiety. At high levels they produce sleep, physical dependence and the danger of death from an overdose. A person "stoned" on heroin will often let a cigarette burn through the flesh of his fingers without feeling it.

Physical and psychological dependence build up rapidly with continuous daily use of opiates. Death comes quickly to those who overdose, usually in less than an hour.

"To determine if a person is in a coma from an overdose of narcotics, lift up his eyelids. The pupil will be totally constricted, a pinpoint," Frykman explained.

"Get him breathing and to a hospital immediately. He can be given something to counteract the overdose, and will respond almost immediately. He will be in deep pain, but he'll be alive."

The cost of maintaining a heroin habit can easily run as high as $100 to $200 per day. When dependence has been established, the person cannot stop use without precipitating withdrawal symptoms, which include loose bowels, muscle cramps, stomach pains, runny nose and-or eyes, vomiting, anxiety and nervousness (sometimes extreme), headaches, muscle aches and-or spasms, insomnia and a variety of other individual complaints. Detoxification takes from three to five days, although some complaints will continue longer. A person is usually able to cope with these symptoms if given minimal medical support, and if withdrawal takes place in the context of a friendly environment which is drug-free.

Percy Davis and Peter C. Sosoksky, school custodians, and bus drivers Sheldermine Ruskell and Ted Bergquist. The briefing was one of several sessions Frykman has scheduled with all employees of the school district. This same in-

MAJOR STIMULANTS (UPPERS)

"Speed" (methamphetamine hydrochloride), cocaine, Benzedrine, Dexedrine, Wyamine and a wide variety of pep and diet pills belong to this family of drugs.

These drugs "speed" up almost everything about a person - breathing, heart beat, even speech. There is an almost abnormal cheerfulness, and the person is much more active than usual. Major stimulants are prescribed for depressing appetite, warding off depression and for putting off sleep in the treatment of narcolepsy.

"By far the biggest abuse of these drugs is found among housewives taking diet pills," Frykman noted.

The "high" achieved from speed is a feeling of euphoria and a sense of maximum creativity and self-confidence. When a person first begins to use speed, there is some enhanced performance and concentration, but this diminishes rapidly with continued high dose daily use.

There is no clear evidence of physical dependence with stimulants, but psychological dependence can develop rapidly. Most people who use speed compulsively don't realize that they have a problem.

There are many adverse side effects from the use of speed. The usual loss of sleep and appetite result in fatigue and malnutrition, paranoid feelings, and a high incidence of hepatitis. To most who work with drug users, speed use is by far the most troublesome form of compulsive abuse. Withdrawal is usually quite painful psychologically, and with some persons also physically. It is followed by a long period of depression.

There is no fatal overdose with stimulants, although there have been reports of heart attacks and ruptured cerebral blood vessels as a result of the increased blood pressure attendant to their use.

In this same general category are the minor stimulants such as caffeine (coffee, tea, Coke), nicotine (tobacco) and sometimes Wyamine. The "high" is in "getting up" for things through their use, as, for example, the person who can't go to work without his morning coffee and-or cigarette.

There is some evidence of physical dependence with nicotine, though most of the dependence is psychological. These drugs are listed with the other drugs of abuse because (1) in some ways their use is more dangerous than that of most other abused drugs (the overall cigarette-related mortality in the United States is one every two minutes, according to the U.S. Public Health Service); and (2) they represent a very compulsive style of drug use (is it more compulsive to stick a needle into one's arm twice a day, or a cigarette into one's mouth twenty to sixty times a day?). During withdrawal from cigarette smoking, some of the same conditions of irritability and depression which accompany amphetamine withdrawal are present.

HALLUCINOGENS-PSYCHEDELICS

This category includes a variety of drugs known by their letters - LSD, DET, DMT, STP (DOM), MDA and TMA, as well as mescaline, peyote and psilocybin. Some naturally-growing substances have some of the same qualities, such as morning glory seeds, Hawaiian wood rose seeds, nutmeg and catnip.

Although these drugs cause an initial mild stimulation, the main changes are psychological. Perception is distorted. There is no physical dependence and the potential for psychological dependence is low.

The danger of hallucinogens is that the "trip" can sometimes precipitate a psychotic break, which can mean long-term trouble for the person involved. Suicides have occurred as a result of some "bad trips".

"If a person is having a bad trip, it is best to stay with him and help him live through the experience," Frykman said. "Try not to use medication to abort the bad trip. It has been found that there is a connection between a high dose use of tranquilizers to abort a bad trip and the appearance later on of "flashbacks."

Contrary to popular belief, there is no convincing evidence of brain damage, birth defects or permanent chromosome damage with the use of hallucinogens.

MARIJUANA-HASHISH

Marijuana is procured from the dried and crushed leaves and flowering tops of the female Indian hemp plant. Hashish is the most potent form and is made from the resin that forms on the flowering tops.

This drug relieves anxiety and disinhibits in the same way as sedative-hypnotics, tends to relax muscles, seems mildly stimulative in some persons. It has some psychological dependence for some persons, but does not produce physical dependence. At times it evokes experiences which have been likened to "psychedelic trips."

The greatest danger arising from the use of marijuana is the possibility of being arrested and charged with a felony. This danger is also present with the other drugs previously mentioned.

TRANQUILIZERS

This family consists of the phenothiazines, with such brand names as Thorazine, Mellaril, Sparine, Compazine and others.

These drugs have some features in common with the sedatives, for they slow down heart and breathing rates. There is an important difference: the sedatives release inhibitions stored in the primary brain areas, while the tranquilizers block off this primary area. Where the

3 MORE LECTURES

Frykman, one of the nation's few experts on the youth drug scene, will give three more public lectures in Brey Hall at Carmel High School on Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m.

The information on this page was presented in his opening lecture on "The Drugs of Abuse." Next Tuesday, Sept. 29, he will discuss "Patterns of Drug Use."

On Oct. 6, he will talk about "Meeting the User," and will conclude on Oct. 13 with suggestions for "Solving the Problem."

The forum is open to the public without charge, and there is ample opportunity for questions and additional discussion.

formation was presented for the public last night at the first of four lectures on youth and drugs to be given by Frykman Tuesday nights in Brey Hall at Carmel High School.

sedatives relieve anxiety by letting loose the deep centers of the brain, the phenothiazines tranquilize by locking in those same centers. This is one reason why they have been widely used to control psychotics.

There is no "high" with these drugs, just a depressing "down". Everything seems in control, but it is an unpleasant experience.

The greatest dangers with these drugs are the many possible side effects and bad reactions. It is also true that overdoses of phenothiazines are often used in suicide attempts.

MISCELLANEOUS DRUGS

Model airplane glue (toluene), automobile ignition spray, benzine, carbon tetrachloride, shoe polish, lacquer, paint and gasoline are among the common inhalants.

The effect of inhaling the fumes of these various substances is similar to that of alcohol and other sedatives, though of shorter duration. There is more drowsiness and more lethargy than with alcohol.

There are strong indications of psychological dependence being built up by glue sniffers. There is consistent reporting of permanent brain damage caused by glue sniffing. It may lead to liver and kidney ailments and cause aplastic anemia (the breaking down of bone marrow).

Amyl Nitrite is a drug that is inhaled and has been used medically to relieve the pain of heart attacks. Folk myth has attributed aphrodisiac powers to this drug, so it is often used in connection with sexual activities. The normal result, however, is limited to a rather uncomfortable headache.

Angel dust and mint weed are two of a variety of smokeable replacements for marijuana. Usually these consist of parsley flakes or other vegetable material (sometimes alfalfa) impregnated with either PCP (an animal tranquilizer), a barbiturate or a hallucinogenic drug.

Mescaline, the active principle in peyote, has been synthesized in the laboratory. Frykman reported he has sent over 50 samples of "mescaline" to laboratories for analysis, and not one of them was found to be mescaline. Instead, they were either LSD, STP or "no narcotics or controlled drugs detected."

People are frequently "burned" when they buy drugs on the street and think they are getting one thing, but in fact are getting a different substance. He said that substances frequently sold for "speed" include sugar, powdered milk, Epsom salts, photo developer, Drano with magnesium removed and rat poison.

For psychedelics the common "burns" are aspirin, sugar substitutes, barbiturates and animal tranquilizers. For heroin, sugar, quinine, procaine and combinations of other substances are used.

Miss Jane Nickols to entertain Woman's Club

The Carmel Woman's Club, at its opening meeting of the Club Year 1970-71, Monday, October 5, will feature Miss Jane Nickols in "Musicals in Miniature", a guided tour of the high moments of love and laughter on the musical comedy stage, Mrs. F.C. Galland, program chairman, announces.

Miss Nickols has won the hearts of audiences all over the Bay Area with her refreshingly different type of entertainment which combines song, drama and cleverly coordinated costuming. She is considered by many to be the best one-woman show currently performing in the United States. The artist was formerly with the San Francisco and Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Companies, and toured with the National Company of "South Pacific".

She starred as Eliza Doolittle in the San Jose Light Opera production of "My Fair Lady".

Miss Nickols has done radio and television work in San Jose and San Francisco, and has been performing her "Musicals in Miniature" throughout the Bay Area since 1960.

She will be accompanied by Miss Ferne Hammond.

Pouring at the tea following the program will be Mrs. Catherine G. Boise, Mrs. Willis A. Potter, Mrs. Fred J. Reynolds and Miss Effie Theobald. Assisting Mrs. Wilhelmina Klein, hospitality chairman, will be Mrs. John J. Adams, Miss Alma Anderson, Mrs. W. McChapman, Mrs. Howard Currier, Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. Dagne Eide, Mrs. Beulah T. Gilman, Mrs. J.C. Hale, Mrs. Viola Mills, Mrs. Permilia Roeber, Mrs. Raymond F. Taylor and Mrs. Rolf J. Ullestad.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. at the Clubhouse, Ninth and San Carlos, Carmel.

Flowers are to be donated through the kindness of the Carmel Valley florists.

Dogs and cats are remarkably sturdy creatures, but accidents happen. They break bones just as humans do, and often because of strange errors in judgment; an animal needn't be struck by a car to sustain a broken bone.

Small dogs, especially those of the toy group, often run amuck of their owners. These little dogs get stepped on by those great big human feet and their small, rather delicate foot bones are no match for a well-shod foot. Because toys are usually kept indoors and permitted the luxury of human laps and sofas, they also run the added risk of snapping a leg bone in a clumsy leap from a height.

Large dogs suffer because their legs must bear the weight of their bodies during stress. A big dog may miscalculate a turn while running, have a leg double under him, and his weight and momentum may break the leg.

Cats, too, mis-gauge their leaps more frequently than is realized. Most of the time, they return to earth from garage roofs, mantelpieces and trees with impunity, but not always.

Whatever the situation that caused the break, you can administer first aid before the vet takes over. The most important thing you can do -- and the animal will probably cooperate -- is keep him as quiet as possible and avoid all twisting, changing position and turning.

You can splint a broken leg just as you would a human limb; remember, though, that the function of a splint is to immobilize the limb to prevent the broken bone ends from doing further damage. Only vets can set broken bones properly.

Anything firm can be utilized as a splint. A stick or board, heavy corrugated cardboard or even rolled-up newspapers or a magazine will do.

Having a broken leg splinted is extremely painful. A gauze muzzle is a must for your own protection. Once that is in place, you use gauze bandage or torn strips of any cloth to hold the leg immobile in the splint.

First, wrap several turns of bandage around the limb, above, then below the break. Place the splint alongside the leg, or halfway around it if you are using newspaper or a magazine. Wrap several turns of the bandage firmly around the leg and splint above the break so the limb is secured to the splint. Be careful not to cut off circulation. Then pull very gently on the leg below the break to straighten it. Wrap bandage around leg and splint below the break. Don't bandage at the point of the break itself, as there are sharp, broken bone ends there!

Then, gently as possible, transport the animal to the vet for further treatment.

One of the side-effects or co-effects of any serious injury is the condition known as shock. In dogs and cats, as in humans, symptoms are collapse or weakness; pale to white gums, irregular shallow breathing punctuated by gasps and a weak heartbeat. Often, there is dilation of the pupils and a lowered body temperature which makes the animal feel abnormally cool to the touch.

After controlling bleeding or taking any emergency first aid measures such as artificial respiration or administering poison antidotes, the treatment for shock is to keep the patient warm, quiet and comfortable. Wrap him in a coat or blanket, but don't use artificial heat sources such as electric heating pads or hot water bottles. Usually, the animal will cooperate with your efforts to the point of lying still; he isn't in any condition to struggle too much. Then, transport him to the vet's, where many things can be administered to counteract shock.

We mentioned last week that dogs and cats get into all kinds of scrapes. In cases of electric shock, either a foolish puppy has chewed through a lamp or appliance cord or has, in rare instances, had an outdoor high-tension wire break and fall on him.

The most important thing for you to remember when you discover your dog unconscious and in contact with a wire is not to rush forward and touch the animal. His body will act as a conductor and you will find yourself getting, at very least, an electrical shock.

Inside, either turn off the main power switch before touching the animal or poke the wire away from his body with a non-conductive object -- a dry stick, a rubber-heeled shoe or a loop of dry cloth such as a belt. Don't touch the wire with anything metallic or with your bare hand!

Fortunately, electric shock is usually not a serious injury. After you move the animal to a safe spot, examine him. If he is breathing, don't interfere except to cover him, treat for shock and call the vet. Check to see if he has been badly burned, especially around the mouth.

If he is not breathing, you will want to administer artificial respiration which is done, in animals, very much as it used to be done with humans.

The simplest method is to press down on the dog's chest for two seconds, then release for two seconds. (The animal is lying on his side during this process.) You can also lift the uppermost front leg slightly during the "release" seconds to help expand his chest and lungs.

In cases of suspected broken ribs or internal injuries, you should not press on the chest. Then, the most effective means of artificial respiration is to attempt to force your own breath into his lungs. The best way to do this is to close his mouth, put your lips over his nose and blow gently into his nostrils. If that method seems a bit distasteful, you can use your hand to form a reasonably airtight funnel between your lips and his nose. You cannot blow from a distance; there must be a closed system to force air into his lungs.

Artificial respiration is also used in cases of drowning -- which happens to dogs and cats in spite of the old wives' tale that they can swim; they usually can, but not always far or fast enough to escape drowning.

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
vi (consulting optometrist)

Q: Can eye exercises improve your vision?

A: Visual training, or "eye exercises" is an effective and necessary means of caring for many visual problems. It is designed to produce comfortable and effective seeing -- not to get rid of necessary lenses. All eyes do not automatically learn to function perfectly, while others seem to lose some skill over a period of time. When coordination, rapid and accurate eye adjustments are not possible, the result is headache, low achievement, fatigue. Many visual problems of both children and adults are of this type and require visual training whether or not glasses are worn.

The "throw away your glasses" idea is appealing -- but unfortunately not scientifically sound. The person who discards his glasses thinks he sees better without them because of his motivation or dislike for eyeglasses.

An unusual Valley wedding

Janet Powers and William S. Shanner were married Sept. 13 at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church, Carmel Valley, the Rev. James W. Brock officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, E. A. Powers of Carmel Valley. She wore an empire white satin gown with a crystal overlay and a fingertip veil. Her bridal bouquet was white baby roses and stephanotis with pink carnations.

One of several unusual features of the wedding was that the dresses of the bride's attendants were designed and made by Janet. Maid of honor was her sister Dawn Powers, gowned in white satin top overlaid with lace and a deep pink skirt. Similarly dressed, with lighter pink skirts, were the bridesmaids, Janet's other sister, Lynn, and Susan Tousey of Carmel. All three carried nosegays of pink carnations, yellow and white marguerites.

Best man for Bill, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Shanner of Carmel was Lyndon Mahrt. Ushers were Takao Wakida and Tay Tousey, both of Carmel.

Susan and Tay Tousey, teen-age daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Tousey of Carmel, became part of the wedding assemblage as sort of "adopted" younger sister and brother of the groom, who had been a boyhood neighbor.

While Bill served in Vietnam, Susan and Tay paid "big brother" the supreme compliment of naming their new puppy for him. The dog, now grown large, attended the outdoor part of the wedding reception adorned with a big white satin bow, the gift of Mrs. Shanner, Sr.

Another unusual feature of the wedding was the attendance of Father Brock's two young sons as acolytes at the ceremony. Earlier, Mrs. Brock and daughters Amy and Becky had given a shower for Janet. The girls' younger brothers, Mike and Joe, not invited to the all-female occasion, felt left out. Having them serve as acolytes was the young couple's way of including them.

Both bride and groom are graduates of Carmel High School and Monterey Peninsula College. Bill is currently employed by the city of San Jose, where the couple will live.

"LIKE CATS AND DOGS" means pals and playmates in this case. These two, already on the road to friendship, need only a good home to complete the picture. They and many equally lovable dogs, cats, kittens and puppies are available for adoption at the SPCA Shelter on the Monterey-Salinas Highway opposite Laguna Seca. (Photo by Virginia Kay).

Carmel School board will meet tonight

The Carmel school board will hear reports on the vocational education program, teacher summer workshops, and a comparative study of adult school costs at tonight's meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Brey Hall at Carmel High School.

A presentation by the Committee for Peace and Quiet, opposed to the operation of the Carmel Valley airport, is listed on the agenda, but has been postponed for another two weeks at the request of committee chairman I.C. Howard. Howard said the group needed time to gather additional information before going before the board to explain its concern about the airstrip.

Other items on tonight's agenda include a request for authorization to obtain bids for a fence at the new bus compound behind Middle School, and a report on the use of recorders in the school music program.

Ducks and geese roam the plush Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club

Anyone who thinks a golf course superintendent does nothing but mow lawns all day hasn't met Cal Ferguson at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Ferguson, who heads an eight-man maintenance crew, does indeed care about well-manicured greens. But he also cares about, and for, a flock of wild and domestic ducks, geese and doves who populate the lakes that dot the fairways.

Twice a year Ferguson and his assistants raise a batch of mallard ducklings, usually 50 at a time, in a large pen near the maintenance yard. The ducklings, which come originally from Minnesota, are fed and protected until they are old enough to face the hazards of life on a golf course. Normally they are put out on the course when they are about three months old.

For a bird, life in this plush setting is not as idyllic as one might suppose.

Food is no problem. The club spends about $100 a month on grain and the ducks and geese also have first claim to all the left-over bread from the kitchen.

But hazards abound, and not just from slicing tee shots. Weasels, badgers and sometimes even wild boar come down from the hills at night and catch unsuspecting ducks. Large dogs also consider the birds fair game and, unfortunately, sometimes children with bee bee guns do too.

For all these reasons, Ferguson needs to raise about 100 ducklings a year to reinforce the population out on the course.

And sometimes, he finds, strange relationships develop. At one time, four pair of Canadian Honkers spent part of the fall resting on the course. Eventually all but one, a female left. She has since been "adopted" by a huge male farm goose who defends her fiercely from other ducks, people, and presumably, golf balls.

Then there was the time a dark brown mallard hatched nine eggs in her nest in the pampas grass on the course. Four mallard ducklings appeared, along with five white domestic farm ducklings.

But Ferguson's most amusing experience came when he let a chicken hatch a nest of duck eggs. When the ducklings arrived, the mother hen cluck-clucked over them and sheltered them under her ample bosom.

Everything was fine until the day the ducklings were released on a lake proudly paddled off, single file, to discover a new world. The poor mother hen scolded loudly from the shore and even tried wading in.

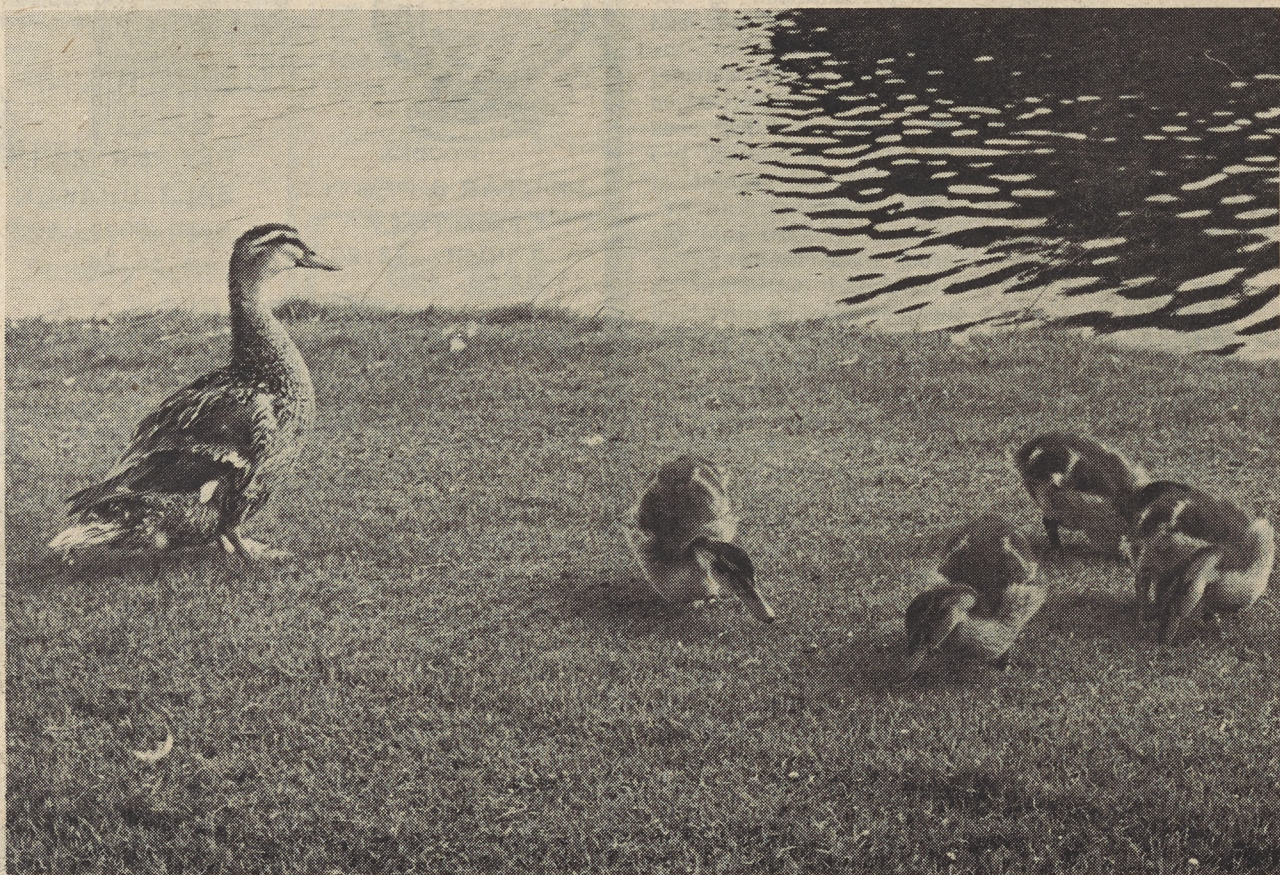

"She looked just like a woman raising her skirt to go in the water," Ferguson laughed. "But as soon as her feathers got wet, she flapped back to shore."

THIS IDYLIC SETTING at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club is home for a varied flock of Egyptian geese, white farm ducks, Mandarin ducks, mallards and Canadian honkers. The flocks are fed daily and protected, as much as possible, from natural hazards.

GOLF COURSE SUPERINTENDENT Cal Ferguson looks over some Mexican ring neck doves he is raising along with ducks in a sturdy pen near the maintenance yard. He hopes the doves will reproduce in the cage and can eventually be put out on the course.

A MOTHER MALLARD keeps a wary eye on her fuzzy brood enjoying a mid-morning snack at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. This family was raised in an island of pampas grass on one of the lakes at the course.

Vandals attack Valley church

Vandals ripped up the gardens of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula last week and smashed windows and broke lamp posts in a senseless rampage. No entry was made into the church itself.

According to the sheriff's report, eight windows were broken, nine lamps and posts damaged and a cement sun dial broken in half. It appeared that a truck had been driven over flower beds and then rammed against the church wall.

Wolves (the friendly type) have their day in Valley

"It was a tossup who had the most fun -- the children or the wolves," said Canadian & American Wolf Defenders president, Mrs. Victor Colton.

She was referring to the picnic and film show held on Sunday, September 20, in Carmel Valley, and at Carmel High School.

The picnic which took place in the woodsy setting of the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club, was attended by some forty members of the Canadian & American Wolf Defenders, and their guests, including many children.

Most honored guests, canidae lupi (wolves) silver Jethro, and black Clem, had travelled from Hayward with their owners, Mr. and Mrs. John Harris and several friends. They made it plain that they considered the rough-and-tumble of childish affection absolutely the greatest. They accepted rapturously all the hugging and kissing and came back with more of their own. The apprehensions of parents evaporated with the obvious love and understanding between children and wolves.

At the film show at Carmel High School the scene was repeated. The overflow audience in Brey Hall, one-third of which was children, gasped as the two wolves made their stately entrance. The next moment the animals were lost to sight beneath an avalanche of children. Small faces were washed as small hands patted, and tugged, and pulled, and small bodies threw themselves on the big furry animals.

The adult audience applauded the final film, "Your Yard - Their Sheep", made by Defenders of Wildlife, which showed the destruction of public lands by the over-grazing being done by sheep.

The donation made by the audience was presented to John Harris' organization, The North American Association for the Preservation of Predatory Animals.

Emergency unit kept busy

No fire calls were reported in the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District last week, but once again accidents and medical emergencies kept the department's Red Cross ambulance on the run.

The department responded to an accident on Tuesday afternoon on Carmel Valley Road west of Panetta Road, where Sandra T. Graham of 348 Hannon Ave., Monterey, had lost control of her car while rounding a curve. The car struck an embankment on the left side of the road, slid on its side and then came to a halt upright on the road. She declined medical assistance.

On Thursday evening at 7:23 p.m. four members of one family were injured when the brakes on their car failed coming down Laureles Grade. The car, driven by Norman Wallace of 3 Merrill Way, sailed into the traffic island at the intersection of Carmel Valley Road, spiraled into the air and landed upside down on Carmel Valley Road. Wallace, his wife, Brenda, and children Stella, 11, and Joe, 9, were all transported to Community Hospital with moderate injuries.

Sunday morning the Red Cross ambulance took seven-year-old Diane McKenzie of 72 Lupin Lane to Community Hospital after she suffered severe facial cuts in a fall.

Mrs. Rod Larsen of 33 Paso Hondo Road was taken to Community Hospital at 7:37 a.m. Monday as a medical emergency, and yesterday morning Beverly Smith of Canary Cottages was treated following an automobile accident at Carmel Valley Road and Village Drive and taken to a local doctor's office.

You wouldn't like brownouts or blackouts. Nor would we.

You have the highest degree of security against them here. That's because we have built our facilities well ahead of the growing needs of our customers. And we're investing $400 million this year to assure adequate and dependable service as energy requirements continue to grow.

We have served all-time peak demands on our electric system this summer with adequate capacity in reserve for emergencies. Our natural gas system is able to serve customer demands on the coldest day.

Clean gas and electric energy are basic necessities in home and industry. Our job is to be sure you can rely on their availability. PG&E

ATTORNEY SEAN FLAVIN has been retained by the Committee for Peace and Quiet to assist in further legal efforts to restrict use of the Carmel Valley airstrip. Flavin will serve as co-counsel with William Callender. The committee expects to make a presentation before the Carmel school board at its next meeting on Oct. 14. It also expects to be in further consultation with the Monterey Planning Commission and Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon, who ruled last week that the airstrip's present operation is entirely legal.

QUAIL LODGE has announced plans to add 50 additional rooms and a central pavilion for larger office and registration facilities on its property at the entrance to the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

The million dollar construction project will start late this year, with completion set for spring of 1971. The new rooms will be in two story and cottage buildings, similar in design to the existing units. They will be located along the 14th fairway next to a lake, which will be enlarged.

Quail Lodge is one of six hotels in California and Nevada rated "outstanding" by the AAA, out of approximately 9,000 that were rated. Guests at Quail Lodge use the facilities of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club and also enjoy guest privileges at Pebble Beach golf course and the Beach and Tennis Club.

sunrise... to Sunset

October and falling leaves are just around the corner and with Fall season upon us, our regularly scheduled activities are about to begin, and our beloved Maestro Taeuber is deep in rehearsals for opening night at Sunset, Oct. 5.

He is equally busy these days with rehearsals for the Beethoven Festival, programmed for Oct. 17, at 3 p.m. at the Carmel Mission Basilica for the presentation of Missa Solemnis, a "do not miss," to be sure. This is indeed a beautiful climax to the Bi-Centennial celebration and will be the grand finale of the year. Since Father Serra, Founding Father of this Peninsula, and whose remains lie on the Mission Grounds, it is most appropriate, the final event of the 200th Anniversary of Monterey be held on those hallowed grounds.

On Oct. 2 and 3, Hal Roth will present an unusual story of the first circumnavigation of the Pacific in a small sailing yacht, "Whispers Pacific Voyage", an award-winning film, full-length, feature film, in color of an 18-month, 18,538 mile voyage of a very brave couple afloat on the high seas. Tickets will be available at the door, and the time is Friday, 8:15 p.m. and Saturday, 8:15 p.m., Oct. 2 and 3.

The lobby of Sunset Theater will be the scene of a very fine exhibit, in keeping with the opening of the Symphony and George Downs, noted for his fine water-colors will be the featured artist; he was on the faculty at Berkeley, in the Architectural Department, and has many one-man shows of this very special media. We are pleased to announce he will host the exhibit each weekend, beginning October 2nd, 1-5 p.m., for the month of October. We are looking forward to this show and many more fine displays to follow.

Altho our Forest Theater series is over for this season, I'm happy to announce Musicians Union of Monterey is sponsoring the Beyer String Trio for a free concert, through a grant from the Recording Industries Fund, presents this program to the community for the purpose of creating greater interest in live music performances. Raymond Fabrizio, Flutist, and Wade Parks, Pianist, will be the featured soloists. Mark October 18th on your calendar for this all Beethoven Concert.

We have many fine things on the fire for the coming weeks, so drop in to see our Master Calendar that Eleanor Melvin updates for the latest happenings on our busy Peninsula.

Sincerely,
DOROTHY BOWMAN

'The Women' opens fall season at Studio Theatre

It should be made clear at the outset that "The Women", which opened last week at Carmel's Studio Theatre, has nothing at all to do with the Women's Liberation Movement, now claiming a great deal of the nation's attention.

Unless you associate liberation with divorce, which is very much what "The Women" is all about. Plus a lot of acerbic dialog about women's cruelty to one another, and how they are helpless pawns in a man's world.

Bill Asp directs the famous Clare Boothe Luce play which enjoyed a fabulous run on Broadway a generation or so ago. That may seem like a long time away to many, but really times haven't changed that much. "The Women" is just as zesty, yeasty and entertaining as it was back in the distant '30s.

Asp certainly has his hands full in this fast moving comedy, shuffling a large cast of females on and off the stage, and into and out of scenes from New York City to Reno and back.

The audience Sunday night enjoyed every minute of it. The featured roles are divided among a half dozen or so talented actresses. The action largely revolves around Mary Haines, played by Margaret Heater, whose husband of 12 years finds a young paramour; faced with this dilemma, she takes off for Reno, reluctantly gets a divorce (along with some of her 'friends'). On returning to New York later, she finds that the new Mrs. Haines is busy with a new boy friend. Well, the old Mrs. Haines swallows her pride and you can guess the outcome.

Crystal Allen, the other woman, is played by newcomer Brenda Handy, and she may very well be a comer.

Particularly noteworthy also are Anita Tonn as Sylvia Fowler, the busy-body gossip who contributes to other's marital problems and winds up with her own; Betty Hughes as Nancy Blake, a witty writer with an equal talent for biting sarcasm; Frankie Bakun as Miriam, who purloins Sylvia's husband; Jean McBride as Edith Potter, whose interrupted pregnancies make of motherhood a questionable occupation; and Mary Payne and Peg Ross who make a lot out of their vignette roles.

Stage manager Paul Boczkowski deserves commendation for his fine work, too.

"The Women" plays weekends (Friday through Sunday) for the next six weeks. It's all pure fun in the high style of comedy which Mrs. Luce made famous, and shouldn't be missed.

'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf' coming to Carmel

Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?", one of the truly big American successes of the century, will be the first play of the 1970-71 Community Theatre season, opening Oct. 2 at the Circle Theatre, Carmel.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is a drama of jolting power and frankness. It is recommended for mature adult audiences only, and is not at all recommended for children.

When the play opened in New York in 1963, it became an overnight sensation. It ran for 660 performances, and won all the prizes awarded in the spring of 1963, including the N.Y. Drama Critics Circle Award, the annual ANTA award, five Tony awards, the Outer Circle Award, the Foreign Press Association Award, and the annual Variety Poll.

This play is a great many things. It is a horror play written by a humorist. It is a brilliant piece of writing. As quoted by Time Magazine: "The weapons are words - vicious, cruel, unspeakably humiliating, unpredictably hilarious - the language of personal annihilation. Jabbing, slashing, eviscerating each other are a middle-aged history professor and his wife. Sharing this diabolic conversation pit are a younger faculty couple who start as passively trapped bystanders and finish as guilty fellow victims. In the long and lacerating annals of family fights on stage, there has been nothing quite like "Virginia Woolf".

The play is being directed by Community Theatre managing director, Michael Keller, with Gloria Wheeler as production assistant. Rick Mannheim is stage manager, and Ruth Fry is in charge of properties. After its opening on the 2nd, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" will play Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through Oct. 31, with all performances beginning at 8:00 p.m.

This Sunday, Sept. 27, auditions will be held at the Circle Theatre for the second play of the season, "Life With Father", a comedy by Howard Lindsay & Russell Crouse. All roles are open and the public is invited to attend.

Beethoven outdoor festival at Carmel Mission Oct. 17

Saturday afternoon, October 17 at three o'clock, Ludwig van Beethoven's bicentennial birthday will be celebrated with an outdoor festival of his music sponsored by Old Monterey Bicentennial, Inc. at historic Mission Basilica in Carmel.

Seating is limited to 3,500 for the one hour-forty minute presentation of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis, Opus 123, conducted by Haymo Taeuber, conductor and director of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra.

The concert will feature the 70-piece Monterey Symphony Orchestra and the 90-member Monterey Peninsula Choral Society, augmented by the Sacramento Chorale of 30 voices, Mrs. Joseph Reeves, Carmel Chairman for the Old Monterey Bicentennial, announced.

Taeuber, an Austrian, was guest conductor with the Vienna Symphony Orchestra for 20 years and has appeared with orchestras in London, Stockholm, Strasbourg, Lisbon and Brussels.

The conductor was the key figure in rebuilding the Vienna Boys Choir after World War II. He also organized the symphony orchestra of Tehran, Iran, and founded the philharmonic choir of Calgary, Canada.

Part of the Old Monterey 200th birthday celebration this year, the festival focuses attention on Carmel Mission Basilica, the beautiful stone church erected between 1793 and 1797 at the direction of Father Junipero Serra.

Tickets for the afternoon performance, at $2 for adults and $1 for students and members of the armed forces, are available at the symphony office in Sunset Cultural Center, Carmel, 93921; Old Monterey Bicentennial Headquarters, 539 Hartnell Street, Monterey, 93940, or Mrs. Joseph Reeves, telephone 624-1942.

NINO DE LEVANTE and Mariano Cordoba, among entertainers at Sunday's Carmel Mission Fiesta.

Colorful Carmel Mission
Fiesta to be held Sunday

The annual Carmel Mission Fiesta will be held Sunday, with Mexican costumes, pinatas and mariachi bands the order of the day. Festivities will highlight continuous entertainment in the tradition of Old Mexico with music, dancing, games and a gala display of spirit found only at fiesta.

The fiesta will begin with the celebration of the 11 o'clock mass at the Mission. It commemorates the feast day of San Carlos de Borromeo, patron saint of the basilica and recalls the early days of Father Junipero Serra and his founding of the Mission.

Co-chairmen Phil Coniglio and John Calcagno have worked diligently to present an unusual event in the Bi-Centennial spirit. John Wecker, entertainment chairman, has scheduled the music of Manuel Campos and his well known group; the flamenco music of the talented virtuosos, Mariano Cordoba and Nino de Lavante and the colorful folk singing of Mark Evans.

A teen dance will be held in Crespi Hall with music by the Capri's. Tacos, burritos and the full course chicken barbecue will be available.

There are many prizes this year. Some lucky individuals will be glad they attended because the fiesta committee was fortunate in obtaining three original paintings by Danny Garcia.

Many of our local artists and craftsmen will have their works on display. This is something new and it is hoped it will continue to be part of this annual community event.

Remember, everyone is welcome at the Carmel Mission Fiesta.

To add to your collection of favorite recipes from MEDITERRANEAN MARKET here's a very special one for ...

CHICKEN BREASTS

Allow 1 skinned, boned breast per serving. Pound inside of breasts with mallet. Line each with 1 slice Italian prosciutto, 1 slice Danish Fontina and 1 strip red pimiento. Fold and fasten together with toothpicks. In large skillet melt 1 cube sweet butter with ¼ cup dry Vermouth, saute breasts until golden brown. Remove to buttered baking dish and pour more Vermouth over all (approx. 1 jigger). Bake 45 min. at 350 degrees. To remnants in skillet add more butter and Vermouth and saute a small amount of chopped chives (or shallots). Stir in 1 cup sour cream. Pour this sauce over chicken just before done. Serve with sliced melon and prosciutto, Wagner's long grain wild rice (or herb rice or saffron rice) and a tossed green salad. A white wine is suggested such as Soave Bolla, slightly chilled. A telephone call to MEDITERRANEAN MARKET at Del Monte Center in Monterey will simplify your preparations ... they'll slice the prosciutto and the cheese for you, supply the pimientos and Wagner's rice and, of course, offer the finest selection of wines available on the Peninsula ... and they'll even deliver it all to your door. Open 7 days a week. Phone 373-0555.

Strictly for the fashion conscious canine set ... all coats and raincoats and sweaters are now reduced 50 percent at the CARMEL RANCHO PET SHOP (thru Sept. 30 only). All sizes, colors and fabrics including solids, plaids, stripes, paisley and furs. A great opportunity to start, or add to, your pet's fall wardrobe.

You'll find the newest in aquarium supplies here. For those who don't already know, Norman Geis, manager, does aquarium maintenance servicing on his own time at "affordable" rates ... stop in or call him at the shop for information.

CARMEL RANCHO PET SHOP is located in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center at Hwy. 1 & Carmel Valley Rd. Open 7 days a week, Thurs. & Fri. till 9 p.m., Sunday 10 to 4:30. Phone 624-4697.

Popular 'Mugwhump!' to play in 14 county schools

"Mugwhump!", a play with an Ecology theme, will be performed by the White Oaks Theatre Touring Repertory Company for the children of fourteen Monterey County schools this week.

Frank Crispo, chairman of the board of directors of White Oaks Theatre, conceived the idea for the program last July, when four performances were given under local business sponsorship. The enlarged program of performances will again be sponsored by local businessmen and corporations.

The entire project is being co-ordinated by Alice Michael, County Coordinator for Environmental Education, who has scheduled "Mugwhump!" performances in Greenfield, Gonzales, Chular, Salinas, King City, San Ardo, Santa Rita and Spreckels.

The program was planned with the help of Mr. James Stefan, Assistant Superintendent, General Educational Services.

This is the first time an extensive schedule of live performances by professional actors has been possible in Monterey County. In one week more than 3,300 children will see the eight performances planned.

Rev. Bull to be installed

Sunday at Community Church

The Reverend Howard E. Bull, former minister of the Pioneer Congregational Church in Santa Rosa, will be formally installed as the Minister for the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on Sunday, Sept. 27, at 3:30 p.m. Rev. Bull came to the Carmel church in mid-July.

Participants in the Installation Service will include several local and out-of-town clergy and laymen. Dr. Robert G. Morris will come from Toldeo, Ohio to deliver the Installation Address entitled "The Art of Laymanship."

Dr. Morris, an attorney with the firm of Everett, Brown and Morris in Toledo, is a member of the Ohio State Bar Association Committee on Judicial Administration and Legal Reform. He earned the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence from the University of Toledo where he now lectures in Political Science. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Congregational Churches of which Rev. Bull is also a member. He also serves on the Board of Directors of the Congregational Foundation for Theological Studies.

Others taking part in the Installation service are The Rev. David Hill of All Saints' Episcopal Church; the Rev. Rev. Edwin R. Howard, former Interim Minister of the Community Church; Mr. James B. Pruitt, local architect and President of the Community Church's Board of Governors; the Rev. Walter A. Boring from the Soquel Congregational Church; Dr. Ronald J. Menmuir, first Interim Minister of the Community Church and Instructor of Philosophy and World Religion at the Monterey Peninsula Community College; and the Rev. W. Malcolm Gwaltney, Pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church in San Jose.

Following the Installation, there will be a reception at the church for participants, church members and guests.
